The meeting was held at 7 p.m. at UW Stout with speaker Dr. Jim Burritt.

There were 61 attendees from clubs in Dunn County, Chippewa/Eau Claire County, Central Wisconsin/Marathon, St. Croix, and Stillwater along with students from UW-Stout.

Jim's talk was titled "The Honey Bee Pathosphere" which provided an overview on the infectious diseases of honey bees and the research he and his students are working on. There is no simple solution to the failure of honeybee colonies today.

A printed roster for the Dunn County Beekeeper Association was given to members present. Attendees were given Daytona organic high oil content sunflower seeds. The pollen is believed to help honeybees with their gut issues.
